Biographical Note

William I. Ausich was born February 2, 1952, possibly in Kewanee, Illinois.

William I. Ausich earned a B.S. in Geology from the University of Illinois-Urbana in 1974. In 1976 he was graduated from Indiana University - Bloomington with an A.M. in Geology and 1978 he received a Ph.D. in Geology, also from Indiana University - Bloomington. After graduation, he was an assistant and associate professor at Wright State University, Ohio, then became a professor of Paleontology at the Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio. He is currently Professor Emeritus of Earth Sciences and Director of Orton Geological Museum at Ohio State University and also a Research Associate at the U.S. National Museum, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. He has many publications to his credit and works with a number of graduate and undergraduate students.

Ausich has won several awards and honors, including the Schuchert Award of the Paleontological Society; the Fulbright Fellowship; election to Fellow of the Geological Society of America, Paleontological Society, and American Association for the Advancement of Sciences; Richard Owen Award-Outstanding Alumnus, Department of Geological Sciences, Indiana University; the Research Medal from Universidade de Trás-os-Montes e Alto Douro, Portugal; and three Distinguished Teaching Awards from School of Earth Sciences, The Ohio State University. In addition, he served as president of the Paleontological Society from 2004-2006.
